EPOCHS FOR 1888.

Dominical Letter A. G. Julian Period 6601 Lunar Cycle Solar Cycle 21 Roman Indiction 1.

NOTES TO THE READER.

The Astronomical calculations in this work arc made to true clock time. The effects of Refraction, according to the latest improved tables of Bessel, and the Equation of time, have both been applied to the times of the Sun's rising and setting: so that the Almanae, and a good clock, will agree the year round.

II. A Time-piece may be set very nearly true by the rising, setting, or southing of the Sun, Moon, or Stars,—but more accurately by the Sun (or the southing of the Sun, or a fixed Star), anywhere on or near the 40th degree of north latitude.

111. The time of the rising, setting, or southing of a fixed Star, may be carried several days forward by subtracting, or backward by adding 4 minutes per day. The common day of 24 hours, begins at midnight, and morning (marked morn.) continues from midnight till noon: and afternoon (marked aft.) continues from noon till midnight; this should be remembered carefully when looking for the times of the rising, setting, or southing of the Moon or Stars soon after midnight.

ECLIPSES.

In the year 1888 there will be five eelipses, three of the Sun, and two of the Moon.

I. A total eelipse of the Moon on the evening of the 28th of First Month, visible as follows:

	New	York.	Phi	lada.	Balti	more.	Cincinnati.
	н.	M.	H.	M.	11.	м.	н.	M.

Magnitude of the eclipse, 1.825, (moon's diameter, 1).

A partial eclipse of the Sun on the 7th of Eighth Month, invisible in the United States, visible in the Aretic Ocean, Norway and Sweden, and portions of Denmark and Greenland.

RISING, SETTING AND SOUTHING OF THE PLANETS.

It should be observed that these are not sensibly affected by the longitude of a place. When the hour is less than six, it is in the morning; when greater than six, it is in the evening.

V ENUS.—Venus will be Morning Star until the 7th of Seventh Month, then Evening Star the remainder of the year.

ERCURY.—Mercury will be brightest about the 30th of Third Month, 28th of Seventh Month and 16th of Eleventh Month, at which times it will likely be visible, being then in the East just before sunrise. It will again be brightest about the 15th of Second Month, 19th of Sixth Month and 7th of Tenth Month, when it will be in the West immediately after sunset.

After an evening thus spent, 48 I got up off the grass and went 3 30 to bed; and whether I dreamed 4 13 or whether it was a vision, I 57 cannot tell, but I found myself 3 50 5 38 on the same spot which I had 24 occupied in the evening, and I 11 thought two men came to me 1 clothed in white; one of them 52 laid his hands upon my breast, 45 and the other placed his behind 39 my shoulders. I then perceived 33 that they were angels, for they 27 stretched out their wings over me, and lifted me up, telling me 21they would show me the gates 0 40 of heaven. When we came to 1 23 3 35 the place, I beheld our Saviour 19 4 31 with outstretched arms, and 16 5 28 was told I must enter in by ief as may seem proper, I will tice such events only as imess my mind most forcibly. ne company and battalion to hich I belonged marched wn to Brandywine at Chadsd and joined the army under e command of Washington d Lafayette. We had orders work day and night to erect tterics, etc., in order to resist e progress of the English my.

After several days hard labor, e became so drowsy that nearly the men except the sentinels l asleep. General Washinga stood in the midst of our camp, and called out to us with a loud voice: "Boys, get up-7 35 9 23 but be silent, the enemy is nearly upon us." About daylight the alarm-gun was fired by the British; then all our army made 1 51 ready for battle.

> 2 34 General orders were given for 3 34 every company to maintain its 4 31 ranks, and each man to keep his 5 26 place. An awful pause preceded 16 the engagement, and some of us 2 stood in solemn silence. 7 47 remembered what I had seen and

The next morning I crawled out of my hiding-place, and a sense of my forlorn condition covered my mind. I knew I had sinned in entering into the war, and no man going to execution could have felt more remorse. I went along until I came to a little cottage where dwelt a Dutch woman. I entered at a venture and begged her to give me a little broth, for I had not tasted a mouthful of food for two days. She took pity on me and gave me some, but I had scarcely done eating it when a party of Hessians came in and took me prisoner. War-worn and weary as I was, they marched me before them, beating me most unmercifully with the butts of their guns, and occasionally placing their bayonets at my breast; they swore they would kill me on the spot because I was a rebel. In this trial I experienced heavenly goodness to be near, and again all fear of 7 22 death was taken away.

8 11 They took me to the Hessian 2 general, Count Donop, who, after 30 Q 24 0 12 7 41 9 53 much rough language, ordered me to be put under the provosteaptain, and with a number of other prisoners of war I was marched to Philadelphia and lodged in prison.

The number of American prisoners in jail at this time was about nine hundred. During the first five days of our con-35 finement, most of us had nothing to eat, and many died from want. 32 One poor fellow who had been, 31 as far as I can remember, five days without food, got at last a 21 little piece of dry bread, which he devoured greedily, and then 0 leaning his head back, immedi-

45 ately expired!

I had been three days without 11 a mouthful to eat, when an aunt of mine got leave to see me; she gave me a small quantity of food and then left me, and in a day or 44 two after sent her son with some 30 more, and thus under Providence 17 saved my life. Ah! when I have seen the tables of Friends in 54 Philadelphia loaded with all the 44 luxuries of wealth, it seemed as if 34 I could weep over them, remem-25 bering the days of my famine, 15 and fearing that the day of plenty 6 was not enough valued.

While I was thus suffering under this cruel imprisonment, I remembered the impressions of 50 my mind on the day of the 45 battle at Brandywinc, and feeling 30 myself as a poor worm of the dust, I used to go out every evening after dark, into the jail 20 yard, and throw myself prostrate 20 with my face upon the ground in deep abasedness of soul, and supplicate the Lord for mercy. This sense of my undone con-

44 dition lasted for a considerable 28 time, until at length the voice 11 of Divine compassion passed 5 11 53 through my mind, that my 4 39 10 47 12 35 prayers were heard, and that I 18 should experience deliverance 53 from my troubles. I arose from 28 the ground with gladness of heart 14 But now my trials increased, for 1 I being a stout young man, the 50 provost-captain sought to entice 39 me into English service, and for 29 that end offered me a whole 19 handful of English guineas; but 7 I firmly refused, and then they 6 44 8 56 beat me most cruelly, until I was 45 much bruised.

36 About this time Ι 15 11 27 Count Donop say, as he passed

out, and he was compelled to lodge on the bare ground, almost literally without food and clothing. Many of his fellow-prisoners actually starved to death, and some of them died, with a little grass half chewed in their mouths.

He was applied to by one poor prisoner, who said his end was near, if he could not get some relief. Having with great difficulty procured a cracker, Jacob told him to take a little at a time, well soaked in water; this was done, and the man revived, and several years afterwards, as Jacob was passing, this person came out of his house and addressed him in this manner: "You are the man that saved my life in prison with a cracker! come in, for I owe my life to you; I will make you all the compensation in my power."

Jacob said: "I looked at him, and remembered him, but I could not take any reward; and after we had talked awhile about our sufferings in prison, and about our release, and how we fared, we both burst into a flood of tears and parted in great tenderness."

But to return; he said: "One day a family in Philadelphia, knowing of our sufferings, sent us a large tub filled with warm soup; and the keeper of the prison, who was a very hard-hearted man, instead of dividing it among us, poured it on the ground in the jail-yard, and laughed when he saw the prisoners fall down and lick up the soup like dogs. One day I saw a plain-looking Friend step up to the prison door, with a paper in his hand, and ask the turnkey: 'Is Jacob Ritter in prison?' 'There are nine hundred men here,' was the answer; 'I don't know Jacob Ritter.' I then stepped up, and ssid: 'I am Jacob Ritter.' He said to me: 'Well, Jacob! what wouldst thou say if I should set thee at liberty?' I said: 'Oh! oh! I would be very glad.' He then handed the paper to the turnkey, who, looking at it, unlocked the iron gate, and said to me: 'There, now begone about your business.' I felt new life spring in me; I jumped off the steps and went to one of my relations in town; but don't know to this day, the name of the Friend who was instrumental in my release; he seemed like an angel that had come to let me out."

My relations were very kind to me, and gave me food and clothing until my strength returned. And after I had done what I could in the way of bodily labor to reward them for their kindness, I went home to Springfield, where they were all very glad to see me, for they thought I was dead, but my mother kept the faith and would say: "I shall see my child again."

In the spring of 1778 I was married to Dorothy Smith, a young woman with whom I had been acquainted before I entered the army. We were both poor, but having a true affection, we determined to assist each other in making a livelihood. We removed to Philadelphia and began house-keeping in a small way. I went out to do days' work, and many times have mowed grass on the spot where the Green Street meeting house now stands. My wife took in washing, and we made out to live.

But it pleased providence to permit trials to continue, and I had the ague for twelve months. During this afflictive period, I endeavored to support my family by working at my trade of shoemaking; and lest through debility of body I should sleep too long, I used, instead of lying down, to lean my head on my arms against a bench, and catch a little rest in that way.

One day my wife was sick, and my little son said to me, "Father I am hungry, give me a piece of bread." But alas! I had none to give him; and as I walked up and down the floor in great trial, a soldier entered, and taking a loaf of bread from his knapsack, asked me if I would give him some potatoes in exchange for it. As soon as my child saw the bread he renewed his application to me for a piece; but I told him he must wait until I went down cellar and saw whether there were potatoes enough to satisfy the soldier. I was very glad when he had satisfied himself and departed, and then with gratitude to the God of my life, I divided the loaf of bread amongst us.

My circumstances, however, began to mend when I- recovered my health. My wife and I continued to attend the Lutheran church. My mind had been uneasy for some time, and I went to some of the heads of the society, and queried with them about matters of faith and doctrine, and of the Light that shined within, and also with regard to water baptism.

They told me there was no such thing as an inshining light, and that I was under a temptation of the devil; and recommended me to go into company and amusements to dissipate such thoughts. Here great exercise came upon me. I found I must either unite with them in all their creeds and ceremonies, contrary to the convictions of my conscience, or must turn my back upon them.

At length I made up my mind to leave them, and remain as a pilgrim upon the earth, not joined to any religious society. I attended to my trade and business diligently; and many persons came to dispute with me on points of doctrine, and tried to influence me to join them. Among the rest there was a company of one sect, who told me they were the only people that walked in the right way; but I told them I was not convinced of it. They asked me what further evidence I wanted. I replied that I had seen with an eye of faith a people who worshiped God in spirit and in truth. They said they were the very people, and began to quote many texts of scripture to prove it. I told them all their talk would signify nothing to me, as I was determined not to join any society, till I was thoroughly convinced in my own mind. So they departed and troubled me no more.

The night after the controversy above alluded to, I saw in my sleep a great multitude of people surrounding a steeple which stood in an open plain, and I wondered no houses were near it. Presently, a man clothed in shining garments stepped up to me and said: Jacob, these people are looking for the appearance of the founder of their society, who will show himself at the belfry of the steeple-house, but mark! as soon as he makes his appearance, the steeple will take fire at its foundation and consume him with everything that is in the building, and it shall be utterly destroyed."

When he left me, I saw the multitude earnestly gazing up at the man whom I now beheld standing at the belfry dressed in his black gown and white bands. Great fear fell upon me when I saw him, and in a few minutes I beheld the fire kindle, and the whole building with the man in it was totally consumed. I awoke and behold it was a dream! I arose and bowed myself in supplication under the baptism of the Holy Ghost. The heavenly Principle was opened to my understanding, and solemn reverent silence covered my mind.

In this state of feeling I was again permitted to have a near view of Paradise, and to behold a glorious company surrounding the throne of God, singing the song of Moses and the Lamb, and a voice was heard saying, "there is more joy in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance." This blissful view confirmed the vision I had when I was a lad, as has been related heretofore. Oh! that all would come to know this pure inward silence before God. On opening the Bible, while under these serious considerations, it seemed as if I had a spiritual understanding given me, such as I never had before, though I have read the Scriptures a good deal.

Soon after this, an impression was made on my mind that I must go to the Bank meeting, but did not know at that time any thing of such a place, nor was I acquainted with any of the Society of Friends. Accordingly I went out and inquired of some person in the street for such a place as the Bank meeting house; it was on a week day. I at length arrived at the place; and opening the door, found a number of people assembled and sitting in solemn stillness. I went in, and seated myself behind the door. In a few minutes I found something working so powerfully on my mind, that it was comparable to the whirlwind, the fire, and the earthquake; under this exercise I got up and went out of the meeting, and stood at the corner of the house, outside; but I felt condemned in my heart and very sorrowful for disturbing the solemnity of the meeting; for now my eyes were opened, and a sense was given me, that these were the people I had seen with an eye of faith, worshipping God in the silence of all flesh. I then resolved to go in again, and sit down in company with Friends. I did so, and the same commotion took hold of my mind again; but as I endured it and strove for stillness, light arose on my poor soul, and it seemed as if a window had been opened in a dark room, and let in the bright sunshine.

Here all my doubts were at an end, and I was confirmed in my faith, not by outward observation nor by outward things, but by the everlasting principle of Truth revealed in me, that this was the true worship in spirit and in truth. Sweet peace covered my spirit, and I felt as if I could have sat there till night. However, the meeting broke up and I went home, determined to let none of my acquaintance know that I attended the Quaker meeting. But the second time I went the news spread, and the Lutherans heard of it. Now my trials began afresh. When my wife heard of my having been to Quaker meeting, she told me she hoped I would not forsake the Lutheran faith, nor deny the Scriptures; as it was commonly reported that Friends did deny them. She continued to go to the Lutheran church, and I to the Bank meeting, for about two years.

It was a close trial for me to differ from my dear wife in matters of religion, but I was favored to keep pretty much in patience, and said but little to her on points of controversy, which proved of use.

While under this exercise of mind I had a dream or vision, in which I saw at some distance before me a temple or strong tower standing in the light; while I was looking and wondering what it was, there was one who told me "the name of the Lord is a strong tower, the righteous flee thereunto and are safe." So I got a ladder and tried to get in at the upper story, but I found no entering place there. I moved the ladder and tried to get in at the next story below, but found I could not. I tried again at the next story, but still could not get in. I then tried on a level with the ground, and walked all around the tower, but could find no entering place; I now began to feel great uneasiness fearing I was unworthy and could not get in at all.

While I was musing, it sprang up clear in my mind, that the way to get in, was to go down into the basement story, so I went down and found the way without difficulty, and when inside I found there was a way to get up.

Soon after this I had many trials: the officers of the church were roused up against me, and the members were full of arguments. One day as I was passing through the market, I met one of them, who was full of zeal; he got very warm, and was angry because I went to the Quakers. I thought he would have struck me in the face, and this made me also feel a little warm, but I happened to look down and saw my own fist was shut, so I passed away as soon as I could, and this was a lesson for me to take care and not get into disputes about religion.

One day when I came home from Friends' meeting, I found some of the church Elders at my house; they said they came to beat me out of the silly notion of going to Quaker meeting: they were full of talk and used many arguments to prove that I had better keep to the faith in which I had been educated; that I would be greatly de ceived if I went to the Quakers.

I said but little, as I had no life in disputing, so after dinner, I went away to lie down, leaving them to talk with my wife. I felt very much tried because my wife was troubled, and did not like me to go Friends' meeting though I had been there but a few times. So I found i would be best to say but little, and try to be still, and had faith to believe that a way would be opened for me in the clearness.

I soon fell into a sound sleep, and just as I was waking up, I thought I saw a grave looking Friend come to my bedside and call aloud to me, saying, "arise Jacob and go to meeting, it is quite time, and be not faithless but be lieving." I jumped up quickly, and heard the clock strike four. It was on a First-day afternoon, and the meeting was generally gathered: so I stepped into the room, and found the church officers still talking with my wife; but now they began to talk to me, and when they saw me take down my hat which was hanging on a peg, they talked very loud. I said nothing at all, but left them and walked off to meeting as fast as I could, and oh! what a precious meeting it was. I felt the reward of sweet peace for obedience

When the elders of the church found I was fixed in my mind to go to Friends' meetings, they gave me up, and after a while disowned me. About this time, William Savery took notice of me; he would come and sit by me, when I was at work, and was a strength to me; I told him I now felt peace, and believed I was safe. He said, "Oh! Jacob thy work is only pretty well begun yet, but keep in good heart, keep the faith."

At length I felt it my duty to apply to be received into membership with Friends: this was a great trial to me. I tried to think it would be enough to keep steady to meet ings, and live an orderly life, but I could not feel easy—so I took up the cross and applied, and Friends sent a com mittee to visit me.

"They came a great many times to see me, but did no say much, passing most of the time of their visits in silence my case was in the meeting about two years, so that I wa fearful I was not worthy to be a member. I told William

Savery one day, "I thought Friends were very slow;" he said, "never mind, Jacob, all is right enough, keep the patience, thou art just as well off as if thou wast a member."

When Friends informed me I was a member, and invited me to meetings for discipline, I thought surely my work was done, that I had now got into the tower I saw in my vision. I attended meetings diligently, and felt great inward peace.

Not long after I joined with Friends, hearing of a fair to be held in Warwick, in Maryland, and also one at Charleston, I concluded to take a parcel of shoes I had made to the fair.

Accordingly I set out with a journeyman, and went down the river in a vessel about seventy miles, then crossed the country to the head of the bay. When we reached Charleston I hired a room and bought half a cord of wood, that we might live quietly and peaceably by ourselves while we remained in the place. A large concourse of people gathered in the town, and among the rest was a playactor. He came to me and offered to show me all his art for nothing; but I told him I did not want to see it.

I was also asked to attend a Methodist meeting, which I declined, and remained quietly in my room. One evening a company of rude men came in and drank and used much bad language. I bore with it for some time, but at length told them, that as I paid the rent of the room, I wished to have it for myself and companions.

Some of them being warmed with liquor, got angry and threatened to abuse me because I would not join with

An Irishman, who was acquainted with me, stood up and told these abusive men, that if any one insulted me, he was ready to defend me through rough and smooth; but I told him to forbear and not strike one of them, for they had drank so much they did not understand rightly what they were about—so he sat down peaceably. Now just about this time, a stranger, somewhat fashionable, came into the room—his countenance and deportment were grave and solid. I perceived by his language and appearance that he was not a member of Friends' society. He spoke out and said, "My friends, I have something on my mind to say, if you are willing to hear, but if you are not, I will try to keep it to myself." As soon as he spoke, my spirit bore witness to his, and I called out, "My friend, if thou hast anything on thy mind to say, be faithful;" so he stepped forward and spoke as follows:

"My friends, I was once as fond of liquor as any of you, and drank a great deal, not only in company, but by myself at home. But after a day of carousing I began to reflect that if I kept on that way, it would lead me to misery. I went to bed and thought I was conducted to the top of a mountain, where I beheld two men entirely destitute of covering, standing by a trough in which I saw some red stuff that looked like fire. One of the men had a scoop shovel in his hand, and would frequently lade up a shovelful of the fire and throw it into the open mouth of the other, who, after swallowing it, would vomit it back into the trough, and this was done again and again! I was much astonished at this sight, and asked my guide what it meant; he replied, 'This is the miserable state of drunkards.' 'Oh!' said I, 'this then is my state, for I love liquor.' I awoke in great terror, and, trembling, made a solemn covenant, that I would not taste another drop of liquor as long as I lived, and from that time I have been entirely clear from that awful sin." The company listened with profound attention to the voice of this stranger; and I do not think any more liquor was drank that night, for the people went away next morning all sober.

Thus I was delivered from my trials at that time, yet felt impressed with the belief that more awaited me. So when I embarked in the vessel that was to bring me back to Philadelphia, I found some rough men on board who persisted in proceeding on the voyage, though the captain said he thought we should have a storm. They went below deck to play cards, and drank and swore all day. I went to them and warned them to leave off their evil doings, but they treated me with scorn, and would not take my advice.

However, a gale overtook us in the evening; the wind blew, the waves beat, the thunder roared and the lightning flashed: then these wicked men were seized with great terror, and on their knees prayed for mercy. I sat in a solemn frame of mind, and said to them, "My friends you have been serving the devil all day, and now in your extremity you cry unto that God you have blasphemed." They were struck with conviction, and implored me to forgive them for their ill treatment of me in the morning. "My friends," said I, "I freely forgive you, and believe if you will now turn from your evil ways, that the Lord will forgive you, and you will experience His mercy and preser-And when we came safe to land, they hung round me like poor beggars, and we parted in much tenderness.

One day, on my return from another part of the town where I had some business, I found my mother-in-law and another woman at my house, disputing with my wife about Her mother had charged her with going to Quaker meeting, which she denied, and, on my coming in, appealed to me. "No," said I, "thou hast never been." My wife stepped up to me, and said in a very loving manner, "Now, Jacob, I am convinced thou art in the right way, and I will henceforth go to meeting with thee."

When she had so said, her mother started up in a passion, and when I tried to persuade her to stay and dine with us, she refused, declaring she would have nothing to do with such reprobates.

When the yellow fever broke out in Philadelphia, in the year 1793, my mind was secretly drawn to visit those who had the disease; but a great conflict between my fears as a man, and my duties as a Christian, arose, till at length I determined to put my trust in God, and venture my life in the cause of suffering humanity. As I was going out of the house, my wife said to me, "Now don't thee go among the fever." I made her no reply, but walked down to the residence of a friend who lay ill with the fever. When I got to the door, nature prevailed, and I passed by; but before I had gone many steps, great distress fell upon me for my disobedience, and I then gave up to do whatever the Lord required of me. So I returned to the house and entered the sick man's chamber. I found him in the greatest extremity, but the power of the Almighty overshadowed me, and I had faith to believe he would be raised, which he afterwards was, and is living at this day. When I had performed the service I had been sent to do, I left him and returned to my home in great peace.
